Subject: RE: HPH - L'Horizon Terrace blinds

Dear Rachel, Adrian,

Further to my conversation with Rachel; earlier this week, I have been drawing up the option of adding the W17 glass sliding doors to the seafront elevation – as requested by the client.

The client has also asked the question, “how would we address the weatherproofing at the top of the beach steps?”

I have investigated reusing the polished stainless-steel doors however, this is proving difficult.

Would there be the option to produce a new set of doors at the top of the beach steps using the Weinor system? I have sketched up a couple of options....which are by no means resolved (see link + questions). For instance, I am unclear as to how and if a top beam would work. Similarly, are the fixed glass elements something the Weinor system would accommodate or is this something CP could provide?

Of course, should you have any alternate ideas I would be open to suggestions.

I Look forward to hearing from you.

With kindest regards,

Dear Rachel,

That's really helpful – thank you!

Regarding provisional costs, leave it with us whilst we run it past the client. Will confirm ASAP.

Hi Katie

Following our phone call, please see attached some photos of our new showroom display which although isn't the same model as the L'Horizon, does have both glazing and a blind. From what we understood when we met with yourself, Julian and Andrew, the primary objective of the drop down screens was to maximise the use of the terrace when it gets hot, as people tend move away from the front tables and chairs if too sunny.

Whilst I agree glazing is definitely a great idea to extend the usage over the autumn/winter months and with not so nice weather, I feel it would best be used in conjunction with the screens for sun protection in the summer months, albeit probably with the glass doors open for air flow. It is worth keeping in mind when glass gets hot, it will increase the temperature on the terrace without additional screens for sun protection (again really great for winter as means you don't need to have the heaters on 24/7).

The images attached show all scenarios, just glazing (open and closed), glazing and screen, just screen etc and for reference I have attached a picture of the colour of our screen which isn't too dissimilar to the colours you had selected, so does give you a good idea of the visibility through the fabric.

I hope this helps!

Would you like me to get some provisional costs to add glazing too?

Kind Regards

Rachel

Hi Julian,

Just wanted to check in and see if the exterior blind samples that were dropped off last week, found their way to you?

Kind Regards

Hi Katie,

The other samples arrived yesterday which is good timing as I had just labelled up an envelope for Ben to drop up to L'Horizon.

Just to confirm both of these colours will now be in the envelope and there are 2 pieces of each, these do not need to be returned to us and should be at the hotel reception.

With regards to taking units and external screens down, in principle yes but I would like to speak to our install team first as I understand it would probably be all or none due to the way the units joined and link into each other, not one here one there.

Kind Regards

Dear Rachel,

Okay. Can you let me know which colour has arrived?

Separately, the client has asked whether the blinds and the rest of the structure could be removed and stored if there was building work taking place in the future?

Kindest regards,

Hi Katie,

I have one set, I am still waiting on the other colour... unfortunately one had to come from France and the other from Belgium! I will get these dropped up to L'Horizon in the interim.

Kind Regards

Hi Rachel,

Just checking the A4 samples have been delivered to L'Horizon?

If not, can they be dropped at reception by the end of this week please and marked for the attention of "Julian Tomlin"

Thank you!

Hi Rachel,

Trust you are well.

Regarding the L'Horizon terrace blinds. Are you able to arrange large samples of the enclosed 2 fabrics please.

I can't recall if you took record or if I was supposed to send you the references. Apologies if it was the latter.

The samples could be delivered to the GM at L'Horizon, Andrew Coggings.

Best,
